TOTAL POPULATION, INCREASE, AND DISTRIBUTION.

Population of the state.—Florida was organized as a territory in 1822 and was admitted to the Union as the twenty-seventh state in March, 1845. According to the Fourteenth Census, taken as of January 1, 1920, its population is 968,470, which represents an increase of 215,851, or 28.7 per cent, over the population in 1910. During the same period the population of the United States increased by 14.9 per cent. The following summary shows the population of Florida from 1830 to 1920, inclusive, together with the increase for each decade, in comparison with the per cent of increase for the United States as a whole:

Counties.—Florida has 54 counties, of which 29 show increases and 18 decreases as compared with 1910. (See Table 1.) The remaining 7 counties have been organized since 1910. Because of the resultant changes in county boundaries it has been necessary, in preparing the maps on page 3, showing rates of increase and decrease in total and rural population of counties between 1910 and 1920, to make the following combinations: Bay and Washington; Broward, Okeechobee, Dade, Palm Beach, Osceola, and St. Lucie; Flagler, St. Johns, and Volusia; Okaloosa, Santa Rosa, and Walton; Pinellas and Hillsborough; Seminole and Orange.

Density of population.—The total land area of the state is 54,861 square miles, and the average number of inhabitants to the square mile in 1920 is 17.7 (see Table 1), as against 13.7 in 1910 and 9.6 in 1900.

Minor civil divisions.—The political units into which the counties are divided are collectively termed "minor civil divisions." The primary divisions of the Florida counties are the election precincts, which number 967, including 2 precincts—precinct 13, Cross Bayou, in Pinellas County, and precinct 6, Broadmoore, in St. Lucie County—for which no population was returned, and 2 military reservations. There are also 202 secondary divisions, comprising 48 cities, 152 towns, and 2 villages. One city and 2 towns are each coextensive with the precincts in which located, and

POPULATION—FLORIDA.

each of 23 cities and 5 towns comprises 2 or more precincts or parts of precincts. (See Table 2.)

Cities.—Florida has 48 cities, of which Jacksonville, with a population of 91,558, is the largest. (See Tables 3 and 4.)

The following summary shows, for each city having 10,000 or more inhabitants in 1920, the population at each census for which figures are available, together with the number and per cent of increase during the preceding decade:

Urban and rural population.—The Census Bureau defines urban population as that residing in cities and other incorporated places having 2,500 inhabitants or more, and rural population as that residing outside such incorporated places.

The following summary presents, for the last three censuses, figures showing the urban and rural population of the state distributed among places grouped according to specified limits of population. The classification for each census is based upon the population of the various places as shown by the returns of that census. Consequently the territory comprised within any one class of cities or that designated as urban or as rural does not remain fixed, because any given place may, through the growth or the decline of its population, pass from one class to another at successive censuses. The proportion of the population of Florida living in places of 2,500 or more increased from 20.3 per cent in 1900 to 29.1 per cent in 1910 and to 36.7 per cent in 1920.
